DOHRMAN, WHO LED COMMERCE KINGS

was enthusiastic and it all appeared to be thoroughly sincere.

"This trip of the commercial commissioners will bear great fruit and this, with the visit of the fleet, will be a historical incident of the utmost importance to both America and Japan.

"The Japanese, as was expressed everywhere we went, look upon the United States as their teacher, and when a Japanese calls another teacher, he means guide, counselor and friend. Japan looks upon the United States as her educator and the Japanese are wide awake and ready to make the most of the increased friendship and commercial possibilities bound to come of the visit of the commissioners."

"It is impossible to go into the details of the marvelous reception we received and the magnificent and enthusiastic welcome accorded the fleet."

"When we were leaving, the commission was presented with a splendid trophy, consisting of an elegant stand which bears the American and Japanese flags crossed.

"As we were about to depart, we delivered the following address to the people of Japan. It embraces everything I could give you in an interview:

"Before returning to our country we desire to express our heartfelt appreciation for the abundant hospitality extended by the Chambers of Commerce of Tokyo, Kyoto, Osaka, Kobe and Yokohama, and to all who have contributed in making our stay so delightful."

"We feel that you have, by your wonderful reception of the American fleet and of the Commercial Commissioners, given expression in the clearest and sincerest way possible, to your desire for the friendship and good will of the American people, and we have no doubt but that the effect will be to bring the people of the two nations closer together."

"Through the kindness of your commercial bodies, we have been given the opportunity to visit most of your important industries and cities and to see the agricultural and industrial enterprises and also observe the commercial opportunities which your country possesses."

"The commissioners have viewed with astonishment the proficiency you have attained in bringing the land under the best cultivation for agricultural purposes."

"We were amazed at the rapidity with which the manufacturing life of your country has sprung into being."

"We were particularly pleased to find the very latest methods as regards houses, foods, hospitals, schools and amusement for the employees carried out to such a degree. Many of our manufacturers could study your methods with profit."

"Through the exceeding kindness and courtesy of your Minister of Communications and the managements of your electric railways, who furnished private trains and every comfort that thoughtfulness could suggest, the commission was enabled to reach distant points of your country and enjoy some of your beautiful scenery."

"At Nikko, we verified your proverb 'Do not use the word magnificent till you have seen Nikko.'"

"On the trip south, Fuji-San showed its magnificent head through the clouds. Your country combines the grandeur of mighty mountains with the loveliness of plains and valleys."

"The excursion down the Hadzugawa Rapids in boats decorated with garlands will long remain in our memories."

"On every hand we found that nature and man had worked hand in hand for the good of all. On the slopes of the hills there were evidences that forestry is not the least among your sciences."

"We look prophetically into the future and firmly believe that the progress of Japan in the past is but a trifle compared with the progress in manufacturers and commerce which is before you as gradually you apply all the resources and advantages at your command."

"We leave with regret this land which has united so closely art and nature and will ever cherish in our memories these pleasant days among you which have passed only too quickly."

"We assure you that we will never be satisfied until we have had the opportunity to entertain a similar commission from Japan to the United States."

"As typical of the speeches made for our benefit, the following extracts from the speech of Mr. Matsuoka, Chairman of the Kobe Chamber of Commerce, are significant:

"You know, and have heard very often since your arrival on Japanese shore, words expressive of our indebtedness to you, and of our appreciation of our time-honored relation to the United States, but let me repeat once more, if you please, our obligation toward your country; and, on your return home, if you will kindly tell it to your friends, I shall feel grateful. We hope you understand fully that we are not saying it as a compliment that Japanese progress and Japanese civilization are largely indebted to America. I mean it and we really owe very, very much to you!"

"A large majority of our people, when our benefactor, Commodore Perry, came to our shore, over fifty years ago, were opposed to the opening of our country, and adverse to foreign intercourse of any kind. I would not have blamed the wishes of the majority then, for we had been enjoying a peaceful life for three centuries under the Tokugawa regime, and cared not to be bothered with foreign entanglements. We were accustomed to peace, we loved peace, and this feeling was strengthened by the knowledge of the troubles China had to contend with in her dealings with foreign countries. However, we were forced to open our country and conclude a treaty against our will for the sake of humanity and the advancement of civilization. Since then, we have realized that we were mistaken as a nation in entertaining the idea to exclude ourselves from the membership of the family of nations. This treaty may be said to have laid the foundation of the present status of Japan, and the landing spot of our benefactor Commodore Perry at Uruga is now marked with a permanent and superb monument to his spirit."

"In the spirit with which you have done favors to other nations, we recognize the beacon light of the world civilization. Nationality, race distinction and language have no significance whatever in your eyes, being absorbed in the great and deep common humanity of American spirit. Being led by you, we will march shoulder to shoulder against any common enemy of humanity and the progress of civilization. The bond of union thus formed between us, cemented by the loftiest sense of man is proof against any storm of yellow papers and jingoists that may rave against it. Thus the relation between the United States and Japan is inviolable."

Mr. Dohrman will remain here for the S. S. Korea. It is safe to say that his expert leadership was largely responsible for the wonderful success of the Pacific Coast's commercial commission, a success in which Honolulu is so sure to share.

THE TAXES COLLECTED

The taxes collected in the second payment for the year have been turned over to Treasurer Campbell with the single exception of the Kawaihau district of Kauai, which will come in within a few days. The showing is a good one all the way through. The following figures show the good comparison between the present and last year:

	1907.	1908.
Oahu.....	$406,505.01	$422,546.49
Mau.....	118,073.71	121,727.12
Mau.....	118,396.16	120,913.26
Hawaii.....	$716,182.88	$734,821.87
	$716,182.27	$734,821.87

*The Kauai return will be increased about $5,000 when the Kawaihau district is turned in. This would make the excess for the year about $23,500.

NEW CITIZENS ARE ADMITTED

Judge Dole took a little relief from the trial of the criminal cases which have been coming up in his court and had considerable work upon the making of new citizens of the United States today. All the applicants who came before the Federal Court this morning were found worthy of the responsibilities of citizenship and the following took the oath of allegiance: John S. Van Volsam, Belgium; Nicolas Barbie, Belgium; Charles F. W. Kort, Germany; Peter W. P. Bluet, England; Edward F. Patten, Canada; John H. Ketcheson, Canada; Gladstone S. Leithhead, Scotland; Jean Abadie, France; Benjamin Fausto, Guam; John Lingman, Sweden. Hipolito Mosquera, of Spain, will be examined at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

An affidavit was filed this morning by John W. Cathcart in opposition to motion for an order to show cause why he should not file a bond of $250 for costs in each of his libel suits against the Advertiser. He alleges that there is no reason that he cannot satisfy any judgment for costs, if such should be found against him, and also that the costs per suit should not exceed $100, instead of the $250 alleged by the defendants.
